Dr Allan Stensballe, PhD, is an Associate Professor at the Department of Health Science and Technology, Aalborg University, Denmark. He received his PhD in 2005 for the key method developments enabling the first mass spectrometry driven phosphoproteome studies. In his early career, he was a visiting researcher at the Ludwig Institute for Cancer Research, Melbourne branch affiliated to Professor Richard Simpson. Currently, Associate Professor Allan Stensballe is heading the Laboratory for Medical Mass spectrometry – one of five nationally funded proteomics core laboratories. His research focus remains proteomics driven clinical research in autoimmune and inflammatory diseases.
